Domestic Violence Resources

Are you, or someone you know, experiencing domestic violence? Or do you just want to know more. Find out about Cornell's resources both on and off campus to help our faculty and staff navigate this very personal experience.

Domestic violence (intimate partner violence) is an issue that affects employees and students in our community. Cornell University is committed to providing resources to employees who are victims of domestic violence. Below is a description of the campus and local resources available to Cornell staff in need of assistance as a result of domestic violence.

What is Domestic Violence?

Domestic violence includes but is not limited to harassment, sexual abuse, stalking and menacing committed by a family member or intimate partner that have created a substantial risk of physical or emotional harm to a person or a person’s child. This behavior includes physical as well as emotional or sexual violence, physical and/ or psychological intimidation, verbal abuse, economic control, threats or injury.

What resources do victims of domestic violence need?

Every case is different. An employee might need assistance with alternative housing, transportation, time off from work, medical care and/ or assistance with legal protections such as an order of protection from the courts. (An order of protection is a legal document that requires the parties to remain separate and can be enforced by police or the sheriff.)

An employee might also need workplace accommodations if he or she fears his/ her partner may try to contact them at work, such as:

- a change in telephone number;
- Net ID;
- change to address or other contact information included on benefits information;
- arrange for new address for benefits to protect confidentiality;
- work schedule;
- work location;
- transportation arrangements;
- parking place;
- time off for court appointments, care for themselves or members of their families;
- time off to settle in a new home or to make arrangements for a new home.

Employees are encouraged to consider contacting a confidential victim advocate who can help an individual decide what is needed both in the short term as well as in the future.

Cornell’s Victim Advocacy Program

Phone: 607.255.1212
E-mail: victimadvocate@cornell.edu
Website: https://health.cornell.edu/services/victim-advocacy
