Career Development Opportunities

For: Nonacademic Staff

Subject: Career Development
Number: 6.10.1
Issued: 10/1/80
Revised: 6/30/98

Contact: Organizational and Workforce Development 607.254.6400
org_dev@cornell.edu
www.hr.cornell.edu

Purpose

As part of Cornell's commitment to staff development, the university offers a variety of programs and services designed to help staff achieve professional and personal growth and greater job satisfaction.

There are four separate educational assistance programs available for staff which can be useful in career development:

- Extramural Program - Cornell academic courses;
- Employee Degree Program - Cornell degree programs for staff, and
- Tuition Aid Program - tuition aid for staff enrolled in approved courses and programs at other educational institutions.

Assistance

Employees can find assistance in selecting appropriate courses of interest through the college or department in which their area of interest lies; in Organizational and Workforce Development; and in Continuing Education and Summer Sessions.

Employees can find additional support through the Employee Education Committee (c/o Office of the Assemblies).

Organizational and Workforce Development offers consultation services to help supervisors and staff find suitable arrangements to allow participation in coursework.
NOTE:
For Cornell University policy information, visit the University Policy Office.