61. Report #20160559

Description: On September 29, 2016 a faculty member reported that a number of students in a program had conveyed their concerns about a fellow student's behavior toward them on social media and in-person. The students provided a number of screenshots of threatening and derogatory language being used by the student. The students and faculty conveyed that they wanted guidance on having a conversation with the student, as they wanted the student to remain an engaged part of the program, but to be able to do so respectfully.

Outcome: A BART liaison met with the involved faculty members, a representative from Academic Human Resources, and a staff member from the Graduate School to discuss potential methods for having a conversation with the student. The faculty members were given guidance on resources that could be provided to the impacted students. The faculty members were also given guidance on how to convey to the student the importance of responsible social media use, and being able to form arguments and engage with their colleagues in the academic environment and in the future. The faculty members reported that they had the conversation with the student and that they were apologetic about their behavior and had not understood how it sounded to their peers. The faculty members are also working with others across campus to develop a professional development project for graduate students.

Description: On October 9, 2016, a student reported that after disclosing their sexual orientation to their roommate, the roommate asked the individual to not speak to them with their “feminine, high-pitched” voice. The student reported additional tensions emerged, leaving them no longer comfortable being in the room.

Outcome: A BART liaison followed up with the reporter and the RHD to provide resources and to determine an appropriate step forward that met the goals of the reporter. The RHD facilitated a conversation between the roommates to resolve the matter.

Tags: Verbal Attack – Based on Sexual Orientation

67. Report #20160633

Description: On October 11, 2016, a staff member reported that after going through the disability accommodation process, they felt they had been limited in the positions that were made available to them, and sought an explanation of why skills listed on their resume were not considered in the job search process.

Outcome: The matter was referred to the local Human Resources representative and a supervisor to explain the process that had been used, the barriers presented by the employee’s previous job performance, options for applying for positions outside of the ADA process, and career resources available at the university. The employee found this satisfactory.

Tags: Discrimination – Based on Disability

68. Report #20160635

Description: On October 11, 2016, an individual reported that they felt they were being discriminated against due to their recently adopted puppy, which they had the intent of raising as a service animal, no longer being permitted into the classroom due to disruptive behavior.

Outcome: The matter was referred to Workforce Policy and Labor Relations and the ADA Coordinator Team, who determined that the puppy was not covered under neither a reasonable accommodation, nor the ADA or NY State law. The individual and the college opted to negotiate terms under which the puppy could be raised under conditions similar to the Guiding Eyes puppy trainers, and to also provide accommodations through Student Disability Services.

Description: On November 17, 2016, a student reported that while attending a meeting and giving input on a topic, the chair of the committee, whose laptop was projecting to the committee, began typing text messages to others in the room that included statements like, “this kid is so annoying, I am going to shoot [them].” The student left the room after seeing the messages being displayed.

Outcome: A BART liaison met with the impacted student to go over resources and options for a resolution, including ensuring that the student did not feel an immediate threat to their person. The student expressed a desire to have a facilitated conversation with the individual regarding the matter and how they would agree to work together for the remainder of the year and not maintain a social relationship. The student was also given guidance on how to craft messaging to request that communication outside of the scope of business cease. The BART liaison also met with the student organization leadership on communicating expectations to the membership.

Bias Incident Summaries: July 1, 2016 – February 28, 2017

112. Report #20161076

Description: On November 22, 2016, a student reported that a swastika had been drawn in the snow outside of a residence hall.

Outcome: The snow melted and the symbol was no longer visible. A BART liaison from Cornell United Religious Work reached out to the student to provide support and touched base with the RHD of the residence hall to advise of the matter.

Tags: Graffiti – Based on Ethnicity, Race/Color, Religion/Creed

113. Report #20161089

Description: On November 29, 2016, a student reported that while attending a class lecture, a faculty member began making statements and jokes that “Blacks tip less than whites” and that blacks “have lower education and income” and that “blacks do not tip enough because they don’t have the knowledge.” The faculty member joked that they had consulted Black Entertainment Television (BET) and other minority organizations.

Outcome: A BART liaison connected with a staff member in the college to reach out directly to the student to learn more of the student’s experience and to inform next steps in follow up that would be appropriate. The staff member also advised of efforts already being planned for faculty on creating inclusive classroom environments.

Tags: Verbal Attack – Based on Ethnicity, Race/Color

114. Report #20161090

Description: On November 30, 2016, an anonymous individual reported that they felt that the undergraduate shared governance group and the university was alienating conservative students by participating in efforts to become a sanctuary campus for undocumented students.

Outcome: No information was provided for follow-up contact. The report was treated as informational and no action was taken.

Tags: Discrimination – Based on National Origin

115. Report #20161105

Description: This is one of two (2) reports received on this matter. On November 30, 2016, an anonymous individual reported that while attending an event featuring Rick Santorum, a number of hecklers used derogatory comments toward presenter including, “shame” and “fuck you.”

Outcome: No information was provided for follow-up with the reporter. CUPD was present at the event to ensure that all participants were safe, consistent with the Campus Code of Conduct. The BART discussed follow-up messaging to the community around being respectful of different beliefs and reminding the community of the Campus Code of Conduct. A prior message was sent to all students by the Vice President of Student and Campus Life.

Bias Incident Summaries: July 1, 2016 – February 28, 2017

121. Report #20161154

Description: On December 6, 2016, a student reported receiving a series of harassing emails from an unknown individual threatening physical harm and making derogatory statements about the student's sexual orientation.

Outcome: A BART member reached out to the reporter and provided resources to protect the student and discussed options for resolution should the sender be identified. Cornell Police was also notified about the matter.

Tags: Harassment – Based on Sexual Orientation

122. Report #20161184

Description: This is one of two (2) reports on this matter. On December 9, 2016, Cornell Police reported that while responding to a separate incident involving the same students, a student reported that another student had been posting "diss songs" about the student online. While in a lounge in a residence hall, the student who had been posting the songs began taunting the other student, getting in the other student's face and threatening physical violence.

Outcome: A BART member followed up with the Residence Hall Director to ensure that all of the students in the lounge had been contacted and supported. The respondent was relocated to another residence hall. The matter was referred to the Office of the Judicial Administrator to manage the investigation under the Campus Code of Conduct.

Bias Incident Summaries: July 1, 2016 – February 28, 2017

125. Report #20161211

Description: On December 13, 2016, a staff member reported that while attending a private event on-campus with other staff and students, another staff member who was intoxicated shouted a series of derogatory comments at other attendees.

Outcome: A BART member had a conversation with the involved staff member to discuss the behavior and its impact on the people around and the department. After the conversation with the respondent, there was no desire to move forward with additional actions. The local HR person was also notified of the matter.

Tags: Verbal Attack – Based on Gender/GI/GE, Sexual Orientation

126. Report #20161212

Description: This is one of two (2) reports on this matter. On December 13, 2016, an anonymous individual reported that staff in the Department of Inclusion and Workforce Diversity had purposefully not responded to previous reports where conservative individuals were the targets of biased behavior. The individual further alleged that the Department characterized the reports in a biased manner and purposefully excluded some reports from the monthly updates that were posted online.

Outcome: The BART discussed the importance of continuing to emphasize the points made by the vice president of Student and Campus Life in a post-election message to students, particularly about respecting all perspectives and ensuring that all members of the community feel welcomed and supported. The BART sent a formal recommendation to senior leadership to consider distributing welcome back messages at the beginning of the spring semester that emphasized the values of the institution and the commitment to open dialogue and respect for others. The BART also discussed additional ways to communicate outcomes, particularly when reports are anonymous and provide no method for targeted follow-up. The BART also determined that the reports that had not been included in the November summaries were reported at the beginning of December, and have subsequently been included in the December summaries.

Tags: Discrimination – Based on Other/No Status Indicated

127. Report #20161224

Description: On December 15, 2016, a teaching assistant reported that a student had submitted a final paper that argued for the unfair treatment of Black people, including the introduction of diseases to the population.

Outcome: The Department of Inclusion and Workforce Diversity advised the teaching assistant that the content of the paper is protected by academic freedom and that the student must be evaluated based on the rubric set forth in the course. The TA was instructed to have the professor of the course grade the final paper.

Bias Incident Summaries: July 1, 2016 – February 28, 2017

128. Report #20161228

Description: On December 15, 2016, a staff member reported that during an advising meeting with a student, another staff member made inappropriate and insensitive comments about the student's involvement in an unrelated case.

Outcome: A BART member provided resources to the student and discussed goals and a desired outcome for the student. A staff member was identified to have a conversation with the staff member and provide guidance on effective advising and the appropriateness of some comments.

Tags: Verbal Attack – Based on Other/No Status Indicated

129. Report #20161259

Description: This is one of eight (8) reports on this matter. On December 24, 2016, a number of individuals reported an incident that occurred on social media. A Cornell student using a social media app connected with non-Cornell students on the app and directed a racial epithet to the group of students. The non-Cornell student posted about the incident online. Individuals associated with Cornell student sent hateful messages to the non-Cornell student who posted the incident, while others asked the individual to remove the post. The non-Cornell student's post was removed by one of the social media platforms, causing many others on social media to repost the deleted post.

Outcome: A BART member contacted the college of the non-Cornell student to discuss how to offer support and resources to the impacted students. A BART member reached out to the non-Cornell student to discuss the incident and to discuss options for resolving the matter. Staff in the Office of Fraternities, Sororities, and Independent Living also maintained contact with the national organization for the Cornell student's Greek chapter, as well as with leadership of the local chapter. The BART is continuing to plan responses to the matter that are both specific to the involved individuals and responsive to the sentiments of the broader campus community. This matter is ongoing and will be updated further in the January 2017 incident summaries.

161. Report #20161584

Description: This is one of two (2) reports on this matter. On February 14, 2017, the Judicial Administrator reported that an individual unaffiliated with the university alleged receiving harassing emails and text messages from members of a Cornell fraternity attacking the individual for their disability status. The reporter distributed this email claim to multiple offices and entities across the university, as well as to others unaffiliated with the university.

Outcome: BART members from the Office of the Judicial Administrator, Cornell Police and Sorority and Fraternity Life conducted initial information gathering to determine that the reporter had actually been sending threats and making postings on social media accounts with the fraternity members' pictures and using derogatory and threatening language because the individual disliked an annual philanthropic event for individuals with disabilities hosted by the fraternity. CUPD and the OJA will organize a meeting with the involved parties to discuss options that are available under university policy and through CUPD to address the matter. Additional outreach was done to the fraternity's national organization to gather additional advice about the matter.
