Veterans and Military Personnel Recruitment Resource Guide

Produced by the Cornell University Recruitment and Employment Center,
Division of Human Resources
Introduction

This recruitment resource guide was developed to connect the Cornell University hiring community to local and regional resources concerned with promoting and advocating employment of veterans and military personnel.

If you would like assistance in developing a recruitment strategy such as building talent pipelines unique to your department, please feel free to contact the Recruitment and Employment Center at voice (607) 254-8370, or via fax at (607)254-8305, or email at mycareer@cornell.edu.

Please contact Cornell University’s Office of Workforce Policy and Labor Relations to discuss accommodations for veterans and military personnel with disabilities so that they may fully participate in the selection process. That office can be reached at voice (607) 254-7232, or via fax at (607) 255-0298, or email at equalopportunity@cornell.edu.

Please note: The information in this guide will be updated on an annual basis. In any collection of information, errors may occur or updates will need to be made. If you find an error or notice any changes that need to be made, please contact the Recruitment and Employment Center at voice (607) 254-8370, or via fax at (607)254-8305, or email at mycareer@cornell.edu.
Service Organizations and Agencies

Soldier for Life – Transition Assistance Program (SFL – TAP)

The Fort Drum Soldier for Life Transition Assistance Program (SFL-TAP) would like to support employers in connecting to transitioning service members and their families. We offer a variety of ways to enhance your visibility in the Fort Drum community and promote your company.

Career Fairs

SFL-TAP hosts quarterly career fairs that allow your company to meet and connect with our clients and their families. During this time you can accept resumes, set up and conduct interviews, or hire!

Dine & Discover

This is an opportunity to introduce your company to transitioning service members during lunch. Additionally, you may discuss employment opportunities, collect resumes, and set up interviews. Although it is not mandatory to provide lunch, it creates a larger audience. This is held Monday thru Friday from 12:00-12:45 in Clark Hall.

SFL-TAP Counselor Training

Whether in person or via teleconference, you may speak with our career counselors about your organization, open positions, and your ideal candidate. Our counselors work one-on-one with service members and can help connect and promote your company. This is held on Tuesdays from 1:00-1:30.

Advanced Interview Seminar

Employers volunteer their time to assist our service members develop interview skills by conducting mock interviews once a month. Although this is not a recruiting event, you may wear your company's logo to increase your visibility and speak to clients following the event.
Information Tables

Promote your company and increase your visibility by setting up an information table in Clark Hall.

Hiring Events

Employers provide job descriptions and schedule a day to conduct interviews. SFL-TAP promotes the opportunities and assists clients with resumes. The employer collects resumes and schedules interviews in Clark Hall. SFL-TAP coordinates space or phone for phone interview. Some employers conduct a group presentation about the company then conduct interviews with interested participants.

We encourage and support your participation in the above activities. This increases your visibility on Fort Drum and interaction with our clients.

New York State Department of Labor – Veterans’ Services

New York State Career Centers offer convenient NO COST job search services to all jobseekers. Every Career Center has dedicated staff to help assess job seeker’s needs, skills, and interests and then guide them through a step-by-step approach to their job search.

We are proud to offer Priority of Service to veterans and their eligible spouses. This means that if they served on Active Duty in the United States military, they will get first priority for jobs and training for which they are eligible and qualified.
Our New York State Career Centers are staffed with specially trained personnel that are dedicated to servicing veterans:

Disabled Veterans’ Outreach Program Specialists (DVOPs)

DVOPs are disabled veterans themselves. They provide intensive case management services to veterans with significant barriers to employment, special disabled and disabled veterans, and veterans ages 18 to 24. They also provide a full range of employment services, including comprehensive assessments, individual employment plans, job referrals, referrals to training and support services, and resume and interview preparation assistance.

Local Veterans’ Employment Representatives (LVERs)

LVER staff are also veterans. They specialize in advocating on behalf of veterans with business, industry, and community organizations to promote employment and training opportunities for veterans. They also provide services including job matching and job placement for veterans, conduct employer outreach, inform Federal contractors of the process to hire qualified veterans, and promote credentialing and licensing opportunities for veterans.

Find a State of New York Veterans' Program Staff Member and learn how you can connect with job seeking veterans to meet your hiring needs:

Military Job Identifiers

Understanding a military coded resume can be challenging. Each military branch has its own job identifiers and “codes” to identify a specific job. The Army and Marines refer to these job identifiers as Military Occupational Specialty (MOS) codes. In the Air Force, a system of Air Force Specialty Codes (AFSC) is used; and in the Navy, a system of naval ratings and designators is used along with Navy Enlisted Classification (NEC) system. Click on any of the branches below to view and learn about their job identifiers and occupations.

College of Agriculture and Life Sciences

With more than 3,000 students, the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences (CALS) is the second largest undergraduate college at Cornell University and the third largest college of its kind in the United States. In national surveys, CALS ranks as the best college of agriculture and related sciences in the country. Our teaching and research facilities are among the finest available. The College’s educational programs are carefully designed to ensure that every student's education is geared to contemporary, real-world issues. Faculty, staff, and students at CALS are at the cutting edge of research in the life sciences, environmental sustainability, agricultural science, economic development, communication, and information science. The land-grant mission of the College, which encompasses research, education, and extension programs, allows for the creation and dissemination of knowledge that makes a difference for students, the citizens of New York, the nation, and people around the globe.

CALS will be seeking to fill a multitude of positions in the coming months. We are always looking for candidates of merit in the following job areas:

• Administrative Assistants
• Information Technology – Desktop and Programming
• Finance and Budgeting
• Lab Technicians

The College of Arts and Sciences is the oldest and largest of the University’s colleges; its research and teaching span the humanities and the performing arts, the biological and physical sciences and mathematics, and the social sciences.

It offers extraordinary breadth and depth in its programs of study, a world-renowned faculty that includes international leaders in their respective disciplines, and cutting-edge research and technical facilities. It provides a high-quality liberal arts education to its own students, and vital introductory instruction in basic disciplines to almost all undergraduates in the other colleges at Cornell.

The College has 500 tenure track faculty, 200 other academics and 300 non-academic staff in 27 academic departments and 10 academic programs, and a student population of 4,100 undergraduate majors and 1,500 graduate students spread across 20 academic buildings. Non-academic staff in Arts and Sciences are encouraged to actively participate in activities or on committees that will enhance their roles. We also encourage professional development and internal advancement for our staff.

To provide support to faculty, departments, programs, and students we frequently seek strong candidates for regular full-time, part-time and temporary opportunities in the areas of:

- Academic and Research Support
- Administrative Support
- Information Technology
- Student Services
- Technical

Anticipated opportunities within the next 6-months include:

- Administrative Manager
- Administrative Assistant
- Technician
- Accounts Representative

College of Human Ecology

The College’s mission impacts the way we engage employees. We are a highly collaborative, “think outside the box” organization. We value strong communication skills, creative thinking, willingness to take risks and a desire and aptitude for continuous improvement. The mission of the College of Human Ecology is to improve lives by exploring and shaping human connections to natural, social, and built environments. Faculty, students, and staff explore the human dimensions of social and natural sciences, design, nutrition and health, public policy, society, family, community, and other realms—all in pursuit of knowledge to make the world a better place. Using Cornell's far-reaching extension network and the college's translational research methods, we deliver our findings directly to communities and families, ensuring that our work reaches those who need it most.

Law School

Cornell Law School’s mission remains that articulated by Cornell President Andrew Dickson White upon the founding of the Law School over 125 years ago: “Our aim is to keep its instruction strong, its standard high, and so to produce … a fair number of well-trained, large-minded, morally based lawyers in the best sense.” Our commitment is to continue to be recognized as the leader among law schools at combining inspiring theoretical, doctrinal, and experiential teaching with cutting-edge scholarship in a supportive, intellectually rich community, so that our graduates can achieve excellence in all facets of the legal profession.

Cornell Law School offers a 3-year J.D. program for 200 students per class, a one-year LL.M. program for about 90 students from countries throughout the world, and a doctoral (J.S.D.) program for about 2-3 new students per year. Cornell Law School has 39 tenured and tenure-track faculty, including 14 with chaired faculty positions; and 11 clinical professors in the legal research and writing program and in clinics at the local, national, and international level. The Cornell Law School faculty is consistently ranked among the top in the country for scholarly productivity and influence. The faculty has pre-eminence in many areas, including quantitative and qualitative empirical legal studies, international and comparative law, and robust doctrinal scholarship in core fields.

The Law School occasionally seeks candidates of merit who will support our mission in the following areas:

- Faculty and Administrative Support
- Program Support
- Student Services
- Technical
Research Division

The Research Division is made up of 20 Research Centers and 7 Administrative Departments with approximately 800 employees. Our research encompasses many different areas including atmospheric, materials, nano, and life sciences to name a few. To support our many distinguished researchers we hire employees to provide research support in our laboratories and offices. Our laboratory positions may require a degree but often just an interest or background in science.

Seeking talent for regular full-time, part-time and temporary opportunities in the areas of:

- Academic Support
- Administrative
- Communications
- Finance
- Information Technologies
- Technical

Student and Academic Services

Student and Academic Services (SAS) handles everything a student might do outside of the classroom. Therefore, many position work directly with Cornell students. Our employees often comment that this direct student contact is the most meaningful part of their job. The education that happens out of the classroom can be significant and being a part of the development of the future leaders of the world is very rewarding.

Seeking talent for regular full-time, part-time, temporary and casual opportunities in the areas of:

- Administrative Assistance
- Athletics and Physical Education
- Housing and Dining
- Bargaining Unit
- Health and Student Services

During the next six-months Cornell Dining will have a number of food service, dish machine, custodial, cook, chef and food service management positions. Health Services will have nurse, doctor and counselor therapist positions. Overall, SAS will hire many administrative assistant positions. On a regular ongoing nature, frequent temporary opportunities occur over the course of the year. Though these temporary and casual opportunities do not include benefits, nor guarantee future opportunities at Cornell, they provide an excellent opportunity to demonstrate ones skills and experience. Moreover, develop relationships and Cornell experience for that can enhance the resume for future opportunities.

The College of Veterinary Medicine at Cornell University is located on the Cornell campus in Ithaca, New York in the heart of the Finger Lakes region. Established by an act of the state legislature in 1894, today the College of Veterinary Medicine at Cornell is one of 28 veterinary colleges and schools in the United States and one of only three in the Northeast. With more than 5,000 graduates, the college is recognized internationally as a leader in public health, biomedical research, animal medicine, veterinary medical education. Situated within a world-class research university with recognized strengths in the physical and life sciences, the study of veterinary medicine has contributed to the Cornell fabric since the founding of the university. Ranked the number one veterinary college in the nation by US News & World Report consistently since 2000, the College's strength is due to its strategic breadth of focus areas and its depth of expertise in each of those areas. The mission of the college is “To advance the health and well-being of animals and people through education, research, and public service”.

There are non-academic opportunities in administration, animal care and laboratory technicians.
